have been given permission to uplink from India are also required to adhere to the same code. However, liquor and tobacco advertisements are being carried by the satellite TV channels uplinked from outside India. Such channels unless encrypted are not subject to any code. The encrypted channels even though covered by the Cable Television Networks Rules, 1994 are not prohibited from carrying liquor and tobacco advertisements since the code does not provide for such prohibition. A proposal to bring about an uniformity, in the advertisement codes is under consideration of the Government.
